Sens. Rand Paul and Mike Lee were the only two senators to vote against the bill.

The U.S. Senate on Tuesday passed and sent to President Donald Trump legislation authorizing permanent benefits for police, firefighters and other first responders suffering from illnesses and injuries related to their work in the aftermath of the Sept. 11, 2001 attacks.

If Trump, as expected, signs the bill into law, the "Never Forget the Heroes Act" would end the need for first responders repeatedly lobbying Congress for additional funding.

"These people are just like veterans," said Senate Democratic Leader Chuck Schumer in urging the bill's passage, adding, "9/11 seemed like a war in a time of war."

The long-sought legislation would authorize federal funding through 2092 for an estimated 18,100 people who are likely to qualify for benefits, according to government estimates.

cleanup, were exposed to toxic chemicals despite early government statements that the site was safe.

The fund compensates individuals, or their relatives if they are deceased, for economic and other losses.

A separate health-care fund for first responders, construction workers and other laborers, many of whom suffer from cancer, already has been made permanent.

The House of Representatives passed that bill on July 12 by a vote of 402-12.

Just before passage by a vote of 97-2, the Senate defeated two Republican amendments that would have either capped the fund's payouts to victims over the next 10 years or would have required reductions to other federal programs to offset the cost of the fund.

Without the legislation, victims of the attack would see reduced benefits due to a lack of funding.

Rep. Carolyn Maloney, whose New York congressional district includes part of Lower Manhattan close to "Ground Zero" in the Sept. 11 attacks, is the original sponsor of the legislation.

"The true twin towers of New York are the FDNY and the NYPD, and fully funding and permanently authorizing the 9/11 Victim Compensation Fund is the least we can do to honor their sacrifices," Maloney said, referring to New York City's fire and police departments.

Altogether, 2,977 people were killed and 6,000 others injured when two hijacked airliners slammed into the World Trade Center, a third crashed into the Pentagon and a fourth crashed onto a field in western Pennsylvania. REUTERS

About 2,400 still without power in Brooklyn

2 Con Edison reported that just over 2,400 Brooklyn customers were without power as of Tuesday afternoon, two days after the utility company preemptively cut power to thousands across the borough. About 50,000 Brooklyn customers originally lost power Sunday during the widespread blackout that left customers without access to air-conditioning on the hottest weekend so far this summer. On Monday, about 17,000 customers still had no power. "We expect the vast majority of customers to have power back by 7 p.m. on July 23," Con Ed said on its website Tuesday afternoon. In addition to the 2,415 Brooklyn residents still without power Tuesday, Queens saw 741 customers in the dark. Con Ed was dealing with the fallout on social media, tweeting: "We are completely focused on getting customers back in service, and we regret the distress they are under."

Missing Canada teens now tourist murder suspects

3 The two teenage boys who were first categorized as missing in northern Canada are now suspects in the murder of an Australian tourist and his American girlfriend, as well as an unidentified man whose body was found near the boys' abandoned flaming car, police said on Tuesday. Lucas Fowler, 23, an Australian citizen, and Chynna Deese, 24, from Charlotte, North Carolina, were found dead from gunfire on July 15 on a highway in northern British Columbia, 12 miles from Liard Hot Springs. Kam McLeod, 19, and Bryer Schmegelsky, 18, have been missing since July 19. Their car was found in flames about 310 miles away from where Fowler and Deese were found dead, near Dease Lake, British Columbia. McLeod and Schmegelsky were last seen in northern Saskatchewan, driving a gray 2011 Toyota RAV4, the Royal Canadian Mounted Police said. REUTERS

Gooden arrested again, latest for drunk driving

4 Former Mets and Yankees pitcher Dwight Gooden was arrested in Newark, N.J., on Monday night and charged with driving while intoxicated, according to a press release issued by the Newark Department of Public Safety. Gooden, 54, was stopped while driving a black 2012 Chrysler in the wrong direction on a one-way street at approximately 11:10 p.m. Gooden was arrested and taken to University Hospital for evaluation. He also faces cocaine possession charges from an arrest in New Jersey in June. "I just like to thank everyone for their support in this horrible struggle," Gooden wrote in a text to Newsday. "My apologies to everyone I let down or disappointed. I deserve everything that's being written/talked about me. ... I have no excuse for my action [sic] so I am going away for a while to try and save my life." REUTERS

Outrage ensues after NYPD cop gets doused with water

No arrests have been made in the Harlem assault, which was caught on video.

Videos of unidentified assailants tossing buckets of water at an NYPD officer in Harlem have gone viral, prompting outrage from high-ranking officials and criticism over the perception that New York cops are too afraid to stand up for themselves.

Mayor Bill de Blasio called the incident "unacceptable" and said an investigation is underway.

In the videos, an NYPD officer is seen arresting someone during what appears to be a traffic stop. Then, a few buckets' worth of water is seen being tossed onto the officer, from various directions. Someone also throws a large ball at the cop, which bounces off his head. There have been no arrests in connection to the incident, which occurred recently in the 28th Precinct and started making the rounds online Monday.

During the incident, the unidentified cop appears unfazed, and does not respond to the assault.

According to a department-wide memo released Friday, the NYPD may charge the suspects with obstruction of governmental administration in the second degree, third-degree criminal tampering, second-degree ha-eo on social media, calling for citizens to respect officers. "The videos of cops being doused with water and having objects hurled at them as they made an arrest in #Harlem is reprehensible. NYC's cops & communities have made remarkable progress — together — but EVERY New Yorker MUST show respect for our cops. They deserve nothing less."

De Blasio also lambasted the assailants, saying, "The NYPD kept New Yorkers safe through the heat wave and last night's outages. We won't tolerate this kind of disrespect. NYPD is investigating."

De Blasio also had a Twitter exchange with former NYC Mayor Rudy Giuliani about the incident. Giuliani called it a left-wing issue that will "only get worse until these left-wing idiots are defeated."

"When you disrespect our NYPD officers, you disrespect ALL New Yorkers. We don't tolerate that in our city. The truth is crime's never been lower in New York City and that's because we're bridging the divide between police and communities — a divide @RudyGiuliani helped create," de Blasio replied.

Brooklyn flooding submerges cars, gnarls Tuesday commute

Flooded streets, transit hell and power outages plagued a storm-battered Brooklyn on Tuesday.

MORGAN ROUSSEAU
morgan@metro.us

It's been one hell of a rough week for Brooklyn.

The borough was knee-deep in despair Tuesday after powerful thunderstorms brought flash floods to city streets and sidewalks. Videos posted to social media show cars partially submerged, and fearless pedestrians trudging through knee-deep water as bags of garbage and other debris float by. The flooding impacted Williamsburg, Gowanus, and Crown Heights and came on the heels of widespread power outages that started amid a heat wave Sunday night.

"As frustrating as this situation is [and as a commuter I share in that frustration], let's be good to one another amid the transit hell," tweeted Brooklyn Borough President Eric Adams as storms battered the city.

Rain and high winds hit the New York City area Monday night, dumping heavy rain through Tuesday morning. The National Weather Service issued a flash flood warning that included Brooklyn, Queens and parts of New Jersey. Scattered power outages were reported across New York City.

Video taken on Carroll Street in Brooklyn showed murky water churning at an intersection as orange traffic barriers bob in the current. Another video, shot at 4th Avenue and Carroll Street, showed water lapping at the doors of partially submerged parked cars.

NYC Scanner shared video of a woman holding an umbrella and sloshing through the floodwaters in Williamsburg. "Watch this brave New Yorker walk [swim] across a flooded street in #Williamsburg #Brooklyn," the caption read. In Queens, a woman was filmed using a traffic cone to scrape gunk loose from a sewer gate on Francis Lewis Boulevard, in an apparent effort to alleviate flooding there.

Brooklyn intersections hit hardest by floods included Brooklyn Avenue and Park Place, Wallabout Street and Throop Avenue, and Fourth Avenue and Carroll Street, according to City Council Speaker Corey Johnson.

Queens saw flooding around the Long Island Expressway and Francis Lewis Boulevard, the Brooklyn Queens Expressway and Metropolitan Avenue, and the Clearview Expressway at Northern Boulevard, Johnson said.

Staten Island saw flooding in Westerleigh.

Things were looking clear in New York City for the rest of the week, with sun, clouds and temperatures in the 80s in the forecast.

Doctors Urge Knee Pain Sufferers “Don’t Get ANY Surgery Until You See This...”

After Years Of Intense Study, NYC Medical Clinic Finally Reveals It's Best “Treatment Formula” For Helping Knee Arthritis Sufferers... Especially When So Many Other Treatments Have Failed

NEW YORK CITY - If you are even remotely interested in discovering how the latest scientific discoveries can possibly help your knee pain... then this is going to be the most exciting information you ever read.

Here is why: Knee pain can not only be brutal... it's complex. In other words, it's not a simple, easy fix.

But I'm sure you already know that. Or you wouldn't be reading this.

That's the bad news.

Now for some good news...

Over the years, NYC Pain MD has treated countless knee pain sufferers. And in that time have been able to constantly improve.

And we have come up with a treatment formula that we have found works best and helps the most patients.

This formula has reduced or even eliminated the pain in many. Some were scheduled for knee replacement surgery and felt good enough to cancel their surgery.

It's amazing when patients who were once in excruciating pain... start feeling better. And start walking again. And playing golf. Or tennis. And finally getting their lives back.

Especially when they had gone to other doctors and tried so many other things.

So many had given up hope.

Sound familiar? If it does... check this out...

The Treatment Formula

While I can't give you the entire treatment formula here (there is not enough space and WAY too complicated) I can give you the basics. And more important... I can tell you what it might be able to do for YOU.

The first and most important part of the formula is: PATIENT SELECTION.

This means, NYC Pain MD has a detailed screening process to tell who is most likely to be helped by their treatments... and who is not.

If you qualify, you have the opportunity to move forward and experience the worldclass treatments that NYC Pain MD offers.

If you do not, NYC Pain MD will tell you what they think your best options are and help you find the right doctor for you.

NYC Pain MD “Treatment Formula” A protocol of advanced medical treatments that has already helped thousands.

If you qualify, NYC Pain MD offers some of the most advanced medical treatments available today all using the most advanced imaging technology including:

- Viscosupplementation (gel injections)
- Platelet Rich Plasma (PRP)
- Stem Cell Therapy (Lipogems)
- Genicular Knee Block
- And more.

Once again, there is not enough space to go into detail about all these procedures... but here are some things you MUST KNOW....

Viscosupplementation is where a doctor introduces a gel-like medicine directly into the joint space. This helps to lubricate the joints often relieving some, most or even all of your pain. Results can last for 6 months to several years.

Many have had these treatments without good results. However, NYC Pain MD feels this is because doctors often do these “gel injections” without advanced imaging to guide them. Research shows they will often miss the joint. If the joint is missed... it is impossible for the treatment to work.

NYC Pain MD has spared no expense and used advanced imaging to guide the injections assuring the medicine gets into the joint. We frequently get results when this treatment was a failure done elsewhere.

The second thing you must know is... our treatment plans are custom made for every patient. And we have all these treatments offered in the same place. Many times you will get the best results from multiple treatments. At NYC Pain MD your doctors will all be there and will all know each other and you and your case. They work together and give you the best treatments and care without you having to go anywhere else.

The ability to select the right patients and then have the potential to give them any or all of these treatments... with all the necessary medical technology... under one roof... has allowed NYC Pain MD to get better results than they thought possible.

Here's What You Should Do Next

If you suffer with knee pain... and any of this made sense to you... NYC Pain MD would like to offer you a No-cost screening. That screening is the first step in our “Treatment Formula.”

You will get to see a doctor and ask any questions you have. Your doctor will take the first steps to see if you qualify for treatments and give you recommendations.

The best thing is... you will finally get direction. You will know what's going on and what is your best course of action... step-by-step. The treatments will be explained in detail and you will breathe a big sigh of relief finally knowing what's going on and what can or cannot be done.

There is so much we want to say to help you... but I'm out of space. Give us a call at 877-296-6310 and take the first step. That step is free without obligation.

Puerto Rico officials seek to search gov's phone amid protests, scandal

About a half-million people took to the San Juan streets in a protest that at times became violent.

Puerto Rican officials on Tuesday were executing search warrants for the mobile phones of Gov. Ricardo Rossello and his top associates amid a corruption scandal that provoked 10 days of protests demanding his resignation and took a toll on tourism.

The sometimes-violent demonstrations, which drew an estimated 500,000 people to the streets of San Juan on Monday, and a federal corruption probe of Rossello's administration are just the latest crisis to rock the bankrupt island still struggling to recover from a massive 2017 hurricane that killed some 3,000 people.

A first-term governor in his first elected office, the 40-year-old Rossello has thus far resisted calls to step down as leader of the U.S. territory and its 3.2 million residents, though he has vowed not to seek re-election in 2020.

"The people are talking and I have to listen,"

Rossello said in a statement on Tuesday. "The future expressions that I will issue will be directed to the actions that we carry out as part of the government's work, as promised and expected by the people."

The protests have also begun to hit the island's economy, with tourism officials estimating that five cruise ships that have canceled stops in San Juan cost local shops, restaurants and other buildings some $3.25 million in lost sales.

The warrants targeted Rossello himself as well as the phones of his top associates involved in the chat, said Mariana Co-bian, spokeswoman for the Puerto Rico Justice Department. She declined to say whether the governor had surrendered his phone.

"A court authorized yesterday search warrants that are being executed today," Cobian said in a statement. "Because it is an ongoing investigation, we will not make additional comments at this time."

The publication on July 13 of chat messages in which Rossello and top aides used profane and sometimes violent language to describe female politicians as well as singer Ricky Martin unleashed simmering resentment

The protests were also sparked by U.S. authorities' announcement of a federal indictment involv-

Police fired tear gas to disperse crowds late Monday and early Tuesday while protesters threw bottles and other objects during protests aimed at forcing Rossello to resign.

Rossello on Monday asked Puerto Ricans to give him another chance, explaining he had made policy changes significant to women and the LGBTQ community.

Those two groups were frequent targets of messages exchanged between Rossello and his aides in 889 pages of online group chats published July 13 by Puerto Rico's Center for Investigative Journalism.

Nike signs NBA top pick Zion Williamson to Jordan brand

The amount of the deal was not yet disclosed by the sneaker giant.

Nike has signed Zion Williamson, the No. 1 NBA draft pick and rising 19-year-old basketball star, to its Jordan brand, the sportswear maker said on Tuesday.

Williamson is the reigning college basketball player of the year and dominated in his only season at Duke University. While at Duke, he broke a number of school records, including scoring the most 25-point games for a freshman.

The New Orleans Pelicans signed Williamson after picking him first overall in the National Basketball Association draft.

great Charles Barkley, is known for his athleticism.

With his uncommon blend of leaping ability and immense size, Williamson churned out athletic highlight plays in his lone season at Duke, including 360-degree slam dunks, towering rebounds and stunning blocked shots.

Terms of the deal were not disclosed by Nike.

The 6-foot-7-inch forward was involved in a social media storm earlier this year after a Nike sneaker he was wearing split in half during a game, causing him to suffer a mild sprain.

Former President Barack Obama was in attendance at that game in February against Duke rival University of North Carolina and later wished Williamson a speedy recovery in a tweet.

Nike's Jordan brand, named after basketball icon Michael Jordan, already counts big name basketball players such as Russell Westbrook, Carmelo Anthony and Chris Paul in its roster.

"He's an essential part of the new talent that will help lead the brand into the future," said Jordan, five-time NBA Most Valuable Player.

Williamson made only a brief appearance in his NBA summer league debut earlier this summer, but still wowed fans in his short time with a ferocious steal and dunk. Williamson plans to skip taking part in Team USA training camp later this summer, as he focuses on preparing for Pelicans training camp, ESPN reported this week.

Shares of Nike jumped on the news. In early afternoon trading, shares were up nearly 1 percent at $86.62. REUTERS

Don't hide your legs this summer because of varicose veins

letters@metro.us

Sitting poolside or making plans to hit the beach should be your biggest priority during the summer. With that, you should not feel hesitant when shedding some layers in order to go swimming or lay out in the sun. While many of us hope to get in shape to look our best, some of us have a tougher time in fear of exposing the varicose veins on our legs. The Advanced Varicose Vein Treatment Center in Manhattan offers a few different treatments to help you clear up any of the discoloration on your legs to get outside this summer.

Varicose and spider vein treatment

Most people usually think of the sprawling varicose-vein clusters, known as spider veins, as more of a cosmetic problem. Many people do not realize that they can cause uncomfortable symptoms like achiness and swelling in your legs. If you are thinking about putting off procedures to fix this problem, you should know that Advanced Varicose Vein offers minimally invasive procedures that require little or no downtime afterwards to get you out the door and sunbathing. The center can combat these spider veins with innovative techniques using both lasers and radiofrequency energy that can knock out varicose veins for good.

VeinGogh

VeinGogh is one of the most noninvasive options for patients wanting to regain the clear complexion on their legs. VeinGogh uses microbursts of focused energy to destroy those damaged veins without hurting surrounding veins and nearby tissue. After the procedure, blood is rerouted to healthier nearby veins for better and more healthy-looking legs. This procedure will eradicate spider veins for good with minimal risk and absolutely no downtime afterward.

VenaCure EVLT

For the laser option, VenaCure EVLT is a minimally-invasive treatment for removing varicose veins. The procedure uses a thin laser that targets the affected vein, also a permanent way to get rid of varicose veins and spider veins. The procedure is quick, only taking around an hour to complete, with only a minimal amount of discomfort and no downtime.

“The characters are immortal”

ARNOLD SCHWARZENEGGER

Metro met up with the legendary actor at Comic Con San Diego, where he was presenting “Terminator: Dark Fate,” the sixth film about the exterminator from the future.

MARIA ESTÉVEZ
letters@metro.us

Without revealing details about the plot, Arnold confessed to being fascinated with the opportunity to work next to Hamilton in a film that promises to reform Terminator and multiply it.

Is all the original “Terminator” crew back?
It was great to see the whole team meet again, the old team. Cameron, Linda, myself, we all committed to return. Cameron has been fantastic, his enthusiasm for the project has infected us all. The concept, the story, we really have fallen in love with the script that he has co-written.

Linda was the one who had the idea of keeping her graying hair, you have also aged, but you seem to accept growing old from another point of view.

I don't think having gray hair means you're old. Linda is 62 years old and does not have the hair color she used to have, nor do I know if that was her idea. But any idea that magnifies the Terminator franchise seems good to me. The previous prequels are the skeleton of this film, full of metal and human flesh, but that metal does not age, it has been efficient for decades no matter how old we get because these characters are immortal. As an actor, I maintain the same strength and energy that I had in the past, my hair can be more or less gray, but my character is still heavily swearing and has bad breath. The important thing is not what happens outside but inside.

You had heart surgery not too long ago, however you keep training. How did that operation change you?

Nothing has changed. I hope my heart does not interrupt my way of working, so far it has not. I was lucky that it was not a very serious procedure and I was able to finish my work well with recovery time because I was not going to compromise my health by training for a character. They were a series of unfortunate situations that happened in my life, but I'm fine and my body is in shape. It happened and I got over it. Now, I don't just kick back, think or live with fear, that is not my way of acting. When it happened to me, I called Cameron and asked him how fit he needed me from 1 to 10 and he told me 5, so I prepared a program according to what was expected of me. Everyone was happy once we started the rehearsals and filming, nobody had any problems.

Is that idea that the Terminators are sent from the future to the past maintained?

Yes. But there are many twists to the story. When I train in the morning, lots of people come to ask me about the script trying to find out something. It was hard for me to decipher at first what was happening, to the point that I had to read the script several times. But everything ends in its place. There are many surprises and the film has James Cameron's strength. A director who has a deep understanding of the Terminator films, where the idea resides in what my character can and cannot do and how we can travel in time. The vulnerabilities of each character reveal the twists of the story and what really happens in the future, a new future. All this causes many surprises. In the first and second installment of Terminator we could talk more easily, but times have changed and I cannot give any clues. The big mistake of the last film was to reveal that John Connor was going to become the villain and the fans revealed the ending ahead of time. This time we have learned from our mistake and we are going to be more careful.

How does this movie talk about the world today? The world has changed a lot since the 80s.

I think many of the things that used to be considered as science fiction have come true, so that's the incredible thing about James Cameron's work, who knew, in the 80's, the direction the world was going to take. It seems incredible to me to think about the advances that we have achieved, because from a technological point of view science fiction is no longer science fiction. The only thing that is really missing is that computers become aware of themselves, communicate with each other and are one step ahead of human beings. If we go down that path, the world will become dangerous. As with everything, there is always a way to use it with evil motives, and for necessary reasons, we have to be very careful.

If you take a moment to look back at your movies and your life, what would you hold on to?

I have been very fortunate to be able to participate in Hollywood and to fulfil my dreams. I always had a very clear vision of where I wanted to go, of what I wanted to get. At 15, my goal was to become a world bodybuilding champion, but not only a world champion, but the best bodybuilder of all times with as many titles as possible. And I got it. My goal was to be like Reg Park, who was three times Mr. Universe, then he became Hercules in the movies.

Later, when I finished with bodybuilding competitions and achieved all my goals, I had won 13 world bodybuilding championships, I started thinking about being a leader in films and once again I did my best to achieve it. I reached that goal. Then my goal changed as I looked for new dreams, looked for other challenges and got involved in improving my community, in extracurricular programs, Special Olympics, physical health promotion. That path led me to politics, my goal was to become governor of California and I struggled to make it a reality, but each of the previous careers helped me with the next step and now I use all those different causes to undo the terrible environment that we live in, to create a clean and green energy future, one in which all children in the United States can have after-school programs because their parents are not around, one where they have a place where they can do their homework and stay in school instead of getting into trouble with gangs and crime.

I am also involved in how to undo gerrymandering [electoral manipulation] in the United States and how to improve this situation. I use all my tools and my knowledge in fighting for the causes that concern me. I'm still involved in improving neighborhoods, communities, cities, my country, and at the same time I make movies and run my business.

Director Guy Nattiv on erasing the stain of hatred in new film 'Skin'

The true-life neo-Nazi redemption movie will be in theaters and on demand July 26.

patrick.king@metro.us

How far can someone go into the dark before they are no longer redeemable? That is the central question to the real-life story of Bryon Widner, told in the powerful new film "Skin," by Academy Award-winning Israeli director Guy Nattiv. Widner, an ex-militant neo-Nazi from Indiana, underwent a series of procedures to remove numerous hateful tattoos from his body, including ones on his face, after defecting from the hateful group that he considered his family for so many years.

The film stars British actor Jamie Bell in a captivating portrayal of Widner that should rank among the year's best performances come award season. The film had a long road up to this point, as Nattiv had originally adapted Widner's tale of redemption as a short film before getting the green light for a full-length feature. Nattiv first heard of Widner's story while reading a copy of The New York Times, Haaretz, in a cafe in Tel Aviv, and seeing photos of Widner's transformation from being fully covered with vile and hateful tattoos to being the upstanding citizen he is today.

"I was blown away that this could happen," says Nattiv, after realizing he needed to tell Widner's story on film. "My grandfather taught me and my Hate" in 2011. Once they met, Nattiv knew he was on the right track.

"It was a magical meeting because I was so afraid to meet an ex-skinhead and I was the first Israeli who he met," says Nattiv. "I was concerned, but he was such a nice, intelligent man who went through a lot in his life. I told him I wanted to tell his story and he said, 'I would be honored,' and he signed his life rights on a napkin."

The film portrays two crucial relationships that helped Widner escape his toxic life: his romantic relationship with his girlfriend Julie (Danielle MacDonal), a single mother of three girls who has experience defecting from the white power community, and Daryl Lamont Jenkins, the founder of the organization One People's Project which helps family how to focus on forgiveness and acceptance rather than just being angry all of your life. This was it. This was the story."

In the time before many of the hateful attacks we have seen all over the world, film executives on both coasts scoffed at the idea of telling the story of white skinheads from "the backyard of America." But Nattiv knew he needed to meet with Widner, and got the chance after Widner appeared in the MSNBC documentary "Erasing to reform white supremacists. Jenkins is played by "Luke Cage" himself, Mike Colter, in the film and remains one of Widner's closest friends to this day.

Nattiv was so blown away by the amazing work that Jenkins has done over the years that he is already planning on writing a film to tell his life story in the future.

"Daryl became a friend and like family to me," says Nattiv, of his admiration for Jenkins. "Whenever I have a screening with him and do Q&As ... After every screening, I say, 'There are a lot of superhero movies right now and superhero stories. But, the real superhero is here right now, Daryl Jenkins.' And he always gets a standing ovation."

"Skin" will be in theaters and on demand July 26.

Free credit monitoring

Four years of credit monitoring that covers all three credit bureaus, provided through Experian, followed by six years of monitoring of their Equifax credit report. Or, up to $125 if they choose not to enroll because they already have credit monitoring. A total of 18 years of free credit monitoring for affected consumers who were minors in May 2017.

Reimbursement and compensation

Refunds of any fees paid to freeze or unfreeze credit after the Equifax breach was announced. Refunds of the cost of credit monitoring initiated after the breach. In addition, those who paid for credit protection from Equifax itself in the year before Sept. 7, 2017, breach announcement can apply for refunds up to 25 percent of the cost. Losses from unauthorized charges to their account; costs for other breach-related expenses, such as attorney fees, postage and notary stamps. Compensation, at $25 per hour, for time spent dealing with the breach, up to 20 hours.

Affected consumers will get several years of help with credit monitoring, but the elevated risk of identity theft is lifelong. To protect yourself — whether you were caught in this breach or not — it's best to freeze your credit with all three major credit bureaus (the others are Experian and TransUnion).

The federal district court in the Northern District of Georgia must approve the settlement. (Equifax is based in

What should I do now? Though you can't yet apply for restitution, you can check the Equifax Breach Settlement website and sign up for email updates from the FTC.

While you wait for the application period to open:

If you are currently paying for monitoring and will be for six more months, begin gathering bills or receipts to substantiate your costs. If you paid fees to freeze or thaw your credit after the breach, gather documentation.

If you had bigger financial losses — such as from identity theft — document the costs, gather proof and estimate the time you spent fixing things.

When will I get these benefits?

The additional free credit reports from Equifax will start in 2020. It is not yet clear how quickly the other benefits will begin.

The initial application period will last for six months. However, an extended sign-up period will last for four years to cover identity theft that occurs later.

Be ready to file. "Consumers should start filing claims as soon as they start being accepted," says Chi Chi Wu, a National Consumer Law Center staff attorney. "The more claims, the more Equifax pays." A consumer can receive up to $20,000. BEV O'SHEA

'Courage to Grow'

Rebelution frontman Eric Rachmany talks summer tour and what makes the band unique.

MOLLY GIVEN
Molly.Given@metro.us

When Rebelution first hit the music scene years ago the reggae movement was not exactly a huge hit. But as years have gone by and the genre has massively grown, so has Rebelution. The group amassed a loyal fan base almost right off the bat, and since the reggae scene has exploded, so has the band's sound. Instead of just the normal Marley-esque beats with beachy lyrics, the California-based group mixes things up with inspirations from many different genres and makes it all their own. Rebelution's singer Eric Rachmany sat down with Metro to chat about what inspires the band, talk about their summer tour and dive into what makes the group incredibly unique.

The band has been together for 14 years—how do you try and keep the music fresh?

The first thing that comes to mind is touring. We play so many shows and we have to find a way to keep things fresh, so mixing up our setlist and finding new ways to engage the crowd. To be honest, when I first got started in this band I didn't know how to be a lead singer. I didn't know how to be an entertainer, I didn't even consider myself a great musician. So every year I feel like we get a little bit better and we learn a little bit more about ourselves and how to be better entertainers and better musicians. I think the fact that we have to get out on the road and perform in front of other people kind of forces us to find different ways to engage the crowd each summer and really just portray the music in a different way.

What do you hope audiences take away from your music?

Would you say you feel different energies in different parts of the country?

Yes, absolutely. I'm all about people expressing themselves however they want to in the crowd. I think that when we're in California people are pretty mellow, it's not that they aren't feeling the music, I just think that the East Coast has a different way of expressing themselves—which we love. It makes every show a little bit different. But a long time ago I learned to never judge a crowd by the way they are moving. Me, when I go and see a show, I'm not moving that much but I am soaking it in.

What would you tell people to expect when they attend a Rebelution concert?

It's definitely a big sing-along, we have some really dedicated fans. After 15 years of being a band, people know the words to everything—it's kind of hard to believe. That never gets old to me, hearing the crowd sing back. I think when people come for the first time, they have no idea about the scene. Back in the day, there was no festival for the American reggae-inspired kind of theme, now there are about ten to fifteen of them just dedicated to this movement. So I think some people must just think "Wow, I never even knew this existed." I think it's cool for them to hear the interaction between the crowd and the artists.

SWEATSHIRTS / HOODIES

Rosalia and Billie Eilish adapt the love for athleisure in much more artistic and casual ways, but brands like Juicy Couture rereleased their classics for those who wanted the original velvet product. These come in other textures and prints. Fenty, Vetements, Gucci, Yeezy, Lacoste — each brand has its interpretation of this piece that today is worn by many.

PIECES THAT PROVE 2019 IS 1999

LUZ LANCHEROS, MWM

If the Spice Girls and Backstreet Boys are back, of course that bucket hat from your adolescence was going to return as well. A "Men in Black" reboot recently was released, the Spice Girls are touring ... Are we back in the '90s? Yes! Nostalgia is on the rise, and it is reinventing the fashion that made the decade unique. Metro highlights the best pieces that were trendy 20 years ago and are dominating the market today.

BANDANNAS

Bandannas returned last year. Remember Jennifer Lopez in "Jenny From the Block"? Or Sarah Jessica Parker, Christina Aguilera, Dionne from "Clueless"? Max Mara, Kate Spade and Derek Lam used them on the catwalk, but on Instagram there are also ideas that range from edgy to traditional.

HAIR CLIPS

Despite many thinking this accessory was created for children, Instagram is full of hair clips that are huge and being used close to the ears. The big brands released several models, and you can still get your hands on some through retailers.

BUCKET HATS

FISHERMEN'S "Fisherman's" hats were sold in much less entertaining colors many years ago. For this season, many brands — from Ganni to Asos — released them in stunning palettes and with different price ranges.

CYCLING SHORTS

Many love them, others hate, but the '90s athleisure is not going to stop being trendy for a long time. Mid-knee and slim cycling shorts also dominate the digital sphere. They are used with accessories and iconic pieces, as well as with denim jackets. Fendi, Dior and Chanel, among other brands, have released their own models.

The Giants inked a deal with their top draft pick on Monday night.

 JOE PANTORNO
joseph.pantorno@metro.us

The only uncertainty surrounding Daniel Jones is when he'll step in for Eli Manning.

The New York Giants and the rookie quarterback agreed to a four-year, $25.7 million deal on Monday night, just hours before rookies reported to training camp.

He was the final rookie selected by the Giants at the 2019 NFL Draft — they had 10 selections in total — to sign his rookie deal despite being the team's first pick at sixth overall.

Jones' selection was plenty controversial based off the notion that the Duke product could have still been available at No. 17 when the Giants made their next pick.

With rookie deal signed, Daniel Jones' time is upon the Giants

There were also high-rated quarterbacks still on the board including Ohio State's Dwayne Haskins — who made it known that he wanted to play for the Giants.

Jones, though, possessed something that both general manager Dave Gettleman and head coach Pat Shurmur loved, prompting them to spend the top-10 pick on him and slate him as Manning's successor.

The 22-year-old's collegiate numbers pale in comparison to the likes of Haskins', yet they are deceiving.

While he completed just 60.5% of his passes for 2,674 yards, his receivers at Duke dropped a mind-boggling 38 passes in just 11 games. If Jones' receivers catch just half of those drops, his completion percentage jumps up to 65.3%.

It was Jones' intangibles that made him a top quarterback prospect in the class of 2019. He shows above-average pocket awareness, pinpoint accuracy on deep balls, and an ability to deliver effective throws in the face of pressure downfield.

Don't forget about a bit more athleticism compared to Manning.

All eyes are going to be on the rookie throughout training camp and the preseason to see how he'll be able to shoulder an NFL workload. While Manning is slated to be the starter come Week 1, it remains to be seen how long his leash will be.

The 38-year-old's status as a productive starting quarterback has fallen under fire the past few years. Behind a sieve-like offensive line, the immobile veteran was constantly in the face of pressure over the past two seasons.

He was sacked a dizzying 78 times during that stretch as a lack of athleticism that did little to extend plays forced him to settle for a multitude of dink-and-dump passes.

On paper, his stats haven't been that bad.

He averaged 3,883 yards with 20 touchdowns and 12 interceptions the past two years. But the lack of offensive bite that he's provided — coupled with an inability to make the tough throw — made the Giants a non-factor even with the explosive Saquon Barkley joining the ranks in 2018.

Naturally, Manning's start to the 2019 season will be put under the microscope with Jones waiting in the wings. Should he struggle early on, the shouts for Jones to get in under center will only grow.

Put nostalgia or the past aside. The Giants need the best possible offense to get the organization back on track.

After all, Gettleman said the Giants can "build and win at the same time," back in March.

His decisions surrounding his starting quarterback this season will indicate just how much he meant that.

Former Jets quarterback Mark Sanchez retires

Former New York Jets quarterback Mark Sanchez is retiring from the NFL, according to Andrew Marchand of the New York Post.

Sanchez pieced an eight-year professional career most notably with the Jets, Dallas Cowboys, Philadelphia Eagles, and Washington Redskins. But he'll forever be remembered for his four-year stint at the Meadowlands.

Coming out of USC in 2009, the Jets traded up for the No. 5 pick in the draft to take Sanchez with hopes of developing him as the next franchise quarterback following a one-year experiment with Brett Favre.

Sanchez's ceiling was sky-high after starting just one year at USC, throwing for 3,207 yards with 34 touchdowns that ended with a Rose Bowl victory over Penn State.

Upon his arrival to the NFL, he went 19-12 as a starter in his first two seasons, leading the Jets to consecutive AFC Championship Game appearances. They would come up short both times, losing to the Pittsburgh Steelers and Indianapolis Colts.

Granted there were plenty of concerns surrounding his game, most notably his accuracy. Over four years with the Jets, Sanchez completed just over 55% of his passes while throwing 69 interceptions compared to 68 touchdowns.

Sanchez will best be remembered for "The Butt Fumble" during a Nov. 2012 game against the New England Patriots. On a broken play that saw Sanchez face the wrong way on a hand-off, the quarterback ran into the back of his offensive lineman and lost the ball. Patriots safety Steve Gregory scooped up the ball and went in for the score to give New England a 21-0 lead.

His struggles headlined the Jets' descent back to mediocrity over the following two seasons before the franchise moved on from him.

The Jets drafted Geno Smith in 2013 and made him the starter after Sanchez went down with a season-ending shoulder injury during the pre-season. They cut him in 2014.

He was picked up by the Philadelphia Eagles where he started 10 games over two seasons. Eight of them came in 2014 after Nick Foles went down with an injury. Sanchez performed admirably, going 4-4 while throwing for 2,418 yards with 14 touchdowns and 11 interceptions.

Brief back-up stints followed with the Denver Broncos, Cowboys, Chicago Bears, and most recently the Redskins before calling it quits.

Per Marchand, Sanchez will join ESPN as a college football analyst starting this season.

Yanks looking small at trade deadline?

The Bronx Bombers are looking at the likes of Mike Minor and Robbie Ray at the trade deadline, among others.

JOE PANTORNO
joseph.pantorno@metro.us

The starting-pitching market ahead of Major League Baseball's Jul. 31 trade deadline is a deep one.

There are marquee names abound ranging from Madison Bumgarner to Marcus Stroman, to Zack Greinke, to Mets righties Noah Syndergaard and Zack Wheeler.

The New York Yankees — a team that has never been afraid to make a big splash — might be looking at some smaller targets.

Late on Monday night, Ken Rosenthal of The Athletic reported

Mike Minor is having a career season with the Rangers at age 31. GETTY IMAGES that the Bronx Bombers are interested in Texas Rangers southpaw Mike Minor.

Rosenthal noted that top evaluator and VP of baseball operations Tim Naehring attended each of Minor's last two starts.

The 31-year-old Minor is the midst of a career season, resulting in a first-ever All-Star Game selection. On a struggling Rangers team, he's 8-5 with a 2.86 ERA with 131 strikeouts in 129 innings of work.

By comparison, he struck out 132 batters in 157 innings last year.

Bringing in a serviceable left-hander might be a top priority on general manager Brian Cashman's checklist this week. James Paxton, CC Sabathia, and JA Happ haven't necessarily been the most reliable.

The problem is that Minor has the Yankees on his 10-team no-trade list, which on the surface indicates that Cashman doesn't have much of a chance to reel in the Texas ace.

It remains to be seen, however, if Minor put an arm like Ray would add the same kind of uncertainty that comes with Paxton, Happ, and Sabathia — which would do little to ease tensions in the starting rotation heading toward the playoffs.

for his services.

The uncertainty surrounding Minor adds to the murkiness of the Yankees' search for pitching help.

Bumgarner, who also had the Yankees on his no-trade list, was all but a guarantee to be dealt last month. However, a recent Giants hot streak has propelled the franchise back into a play-off race meaning the 29-year-old southpaw might not be going anywhere.

The Yankees have also been linked to Diamondbacks lefty Robbie Ray, who is 9-6 with a 3.95 ERA this season.

That's not the kind of big-time acquisition that Yankees fans are accustomed to. Adding an arm like Ray would add the same kind of uncertainty that comes with Paxton, Happ, and Sabathia — which would do little to ease tensions in the starting rotation heading toward the playoffs.

METROPOLITAN COLLEGE OF NEW YORK | BRONX CAMPUS

AN MCNY DEGREE CAN CHANGE EVERYTHING

OPEN HOUSE

July 25 | 4 PM - 7 PM

LIZ USED HER PASSION FOR HELPING PEOPLE TO DESIGN HER FUTURE.

While working as a hospital administrator, Liz decided to go back to school. She managed work, motherhood, and her studies, completing her Bachelor's and Master's degrees in just three years. Liz's commitment to the mission of Metropolitan College of New York is so strong that she is now a Senior Admissions Counselor at MCNY helping others design their future.

Choose from programs in Business, Human Services, Education, Media, Emergency Management, Information Technology, Healthcare Management, Public Affairs and Administration, and Financial Services to get closer to your future career.

Learn more at our Open House at 463 East 149th Street in the Bronx.
